COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course provides a basic social science “literacy” of contemporary China, defined loosely as Chinese society since the establishment of the People’s Republic of China in 1949. It is listed in the sociology catalog, but the nature and orientation of the course are interdisciplinary, incorporating readings in history, sociology, political science, anthropology, economics, and law. The aim is to demystify China, to make it accessible to you, and to give you some perspectives to pursue further engagement with China.

The course begins with an introduction on the main institutions of traditional Chinese society and investigates how these institutions have changed in the revolutions and upheavals of the 20th century, particularly under the rule of the Chinese Communist Party. Then we focus on the post-1978 reform period and discuss the social changes in various aspects of contemporary Chinese society, including the economy, family, education, social stratification, politics, law, the urban/rural divide, media and the Internet, and civil society.

REQUIREMENTS

The course is designed as a combination of lectures and section meetings. Careful reading before lectures and active participation in section meetings are both important. The teaching assistant is responsible for organizing discussions in section meetings and giving you participation grade based on your performance. Reading and class participation account for 10% of the final grade.

The exams of the course consist of an in-class mid-term exam, a take-home mid-term exam, and a take-home final exam. The in-class mid-term exam is scheduled on September 25, 2014
(Thursday) and it accounts for 20% of your final grade. The take-home mid-term exam is scheduled in Week 9 (October 23-30, 2014) and it accounts for 30% of your final grade. The take-home final exam is scheduled in the exam week (December 11-18, 2014) and it accounts for 40% of your final grade. Out of a concern for fairness to all students, there will be no make-up exam except in the case of documented extreme illness. Please mark your calendar now with the exam times so that you can ensure your participation.

READINGS

The course readings consist of two textbooks and a number of electronic articles and book chapters. After logging in to the course website at Learn@UW, please click on the “Materials” button and then select “Content”. All the electronic readings are in PDF format under the “Readings” folder. The two textbooks are available for purchase at the University Bookstore. You are required to get these two books if you take this course. Both of them will be thoroughly tested in the exams.

You are expected to do the readings BEFORE every class as lectures will be based on the assumption that you have completed the assigned readings. Lack of reading is likely to generate serious difficulties in understanding the lectures and cause major problems for you in the section meetings and exams.

LECTURES

For your convenience in taking notes and reviewing course materials, PowerPoint will be used in the lectures. The instructor will upload each week’s PowerPoint slides to Learn@UW after the Thursday lecture. Please note that the PowerPoint slides are only brief outlines of the lectures, so note taking is still very important for you to do well in the exams.

Attendance of lectures is crucial in the sense that exams will be based on both lectures and assigned reading materials. You are responsible for all lecture materials and for any announcements made in class, whether or not you are present. Please communicate with the instructor and/or the teaching assistant if you become ill or emergencies arise so that we will be aware of your circumstances. If you miss a class, you should ask a classmate to review their notes from that day. Similarly, you are required to attend section meetings. If you have to miss classes for a prolonged period due to serious illness, you should speak to the teaching assistant and/or the instructor as soon as possible.

Please do not arrive late to class as it is disruptive both to the instructor and to your classmates. Repeated tardiness will result in a lower final grade. Meanwhile, if you must leave early in a class, please speak to the instructor before the lecture to ask for permission. Otherwise please do NOT pack your things or leave the classroom until the lecture is over. If any emergency arises during the lecture, please raise your hand and inform the instructor.

OFFICE HOURS

The instructor’s office hours are 4:00-5:00pm on Tuesdays (and by appointment). The teaching assistant’s office hours are 2:00-4:00pm on Tuesdays. You should contact the teaching assistant first with questions about course logistics, but please feel free to come by during the instructor’s office hours to discuss course materials and other academic questions. If you cannot come to the regular office hours due to conflicts of schedule, please email to make an appointment and find a different time to meet.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Students with particular needs that might affect participation, coursework, or examination environment should inform the instructor and the teaching assistant about those needs within the first three weeks of the semester so that we reasonably can accommodate those needs properly. We rely on the McBurney Disability Resource Center to determine what academic accommodations a student may require. Students who request accommodations must master all requirements, skills, knowledge, and academic standards of the course. Students who request relief for religious observances also should notify the instructor and the teaching assistant within the first three weeks of the semester.
